| 9B. Explain: The reporting of all influenza deaths was deemed critical to influenza surveillance efforts and was critical in helping public health officials identify and characterize the groups who are at highest risk so that they could design appropriate public health interventions to help save lives. As such, the Commission adopted a permanent amendment to the rule that required that all flu deaths be reported. The amendment was adopted and became effective April 1, 2011. However, when the rule was more recently amended for HIV reporting changes, the language requiring flu death reporting was inadvertently removed from the rule. This amendment re-establishes flu death reporting for all ages. | |

| 9B. Explain: The CRC is amending its rule that establishes standards for sediment that may be placed on public beaches in fill projects, including beach nourishment, dredged material disposal, habitat restoration, storm protection and erosion control. This action will provide financial relief to applicants for permits for certain beach fill projects. The CRC has identified a limited set of conditions under which applicants can avoid some permit-related costs without violating the intent of the current rule or compromising environmental protection. | |

| 9B. Explain: The CRC is amending the rule that establishes a General Permit for the construction of non-commercial boat ramps along estuarine and public trust shorelines. This action will streamline, simplify and reduce costs to the public for permitting of non-commercial boat ramps under the General Permit. DCM has observed that it has become common practice to construct a launch access dock and protective groins in conjunction with a new boat ramp, and the CRC has determined that it is unnecessary to require three separate General Permit applications and three application fees for what is essentially a single project. | |
