The necessity of a State Search and Rescue Program has been made apparent through the significant number of local, state, and federal states of emergency that have required coordinated and qualified resources to augment local search and rescue capabilities. Rules are required to ensure the equitable implementation of the NC Search and Rescue Program. The NC Search and Rescue Program is a partnership between local and state governments where the state augments local response capabilities to enhance disaster response capabilities. These rules establish standards for eligibility, resource types, and response expectations both administratively as well as operationally when responding under the authorities of the NC Search and Rescue Program. The rules of this section only apply to those entities who elect to participate in the program.

The necessity of a State Search and Rescue Program has been made apparent through the significant number of local, state, and federal states of emergency that have required coordinated and qualified resources to augment local search and rescue capabilities. Rules are required to ensure the equitable implementation of the NC Search and Rescue Program. The NC Search and Rescue Program is a partnership between local and state governments where the state augments local response capabilities to enhance disaster response capabilities. These rules establish standards for eligibility, resource types, and response expectations both administratively as well as operationally when responding under the authorities of the NC Search and Rescue Program. The rules of this section only apply to those entities who elect to participate in the program.

SUBMISSION FOR PERMANENT RULE

9B. Explain: Through an amendment in 2016, the NCITLB removed the then-existing 21 NCAC 25 .0205(f), which prohibited the NCITLB from renewing a provisional license for a sixth time. That change was necessary at that time due to a testing moratorium preventing provisional licensees on a major pathway to full licensure from taking the examination required to become fully licensed. However, that moratorium has since been lifted. An additional moratorium regarding testing for interpreters who are deaf has also been effectively lifted by a new test that is now available.

Since the prohibition was removed in 2016, the number of provisional licensees seeking renewal for a sixth time and beyond (rather than obtaining full licensure) has increased. In 2021 alone, approximately 20 provisional licensees would not qualify for an extension of their provisional license under the pre-2016 version of 21 NCAC 25 .0205(f).

The Deaf and Hard of Hearing Community, which the licensees of the NCITLB serve as interpreters, has expressed concern over the poor quality of the interpreting skills of the provisional licensees seeking multiple renewals/extensions of their provisional licenses. In fact, a person currently seeking a provisional license need only obtain an Associate’s Degree in interpreting to qualify for a provisional license under one pathway to licensure. That person need not pass any separate skills test to determine the accuracy of the words correctly interpreted in order to obtain a provisional license. At present, such person can linger for years as a provisional licensee without developing the accuracy and skills necessary to become fully licensed. Interpreting accuracy and skill are of paramount importance during medical appointments, financial transactions, and numerous other interpreting situations.

The NCITLB finds that there is a compelling need to protect both the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Community and the hearing community, which also relies upon accurate interpreting, by requiring provisional interpreters to advance to full licensure in an expedient manner by limiting the number of provisional license extensions allowable. In this regard, the NCITLB also finds that there is a compelling need to motivate provisional licensees to increase their skills to become full licensees in a timely manner in order to improve the quality of interpreting necessary for the protection of the health, safety, and welfare of the members of the public who rely upon interpreters.

The NCITLB further finds that the standards for becoming a provisional licensee contained in N.C. Gen. Stat. § 90D-8, while in need of improvement, mean that a person holding a provisional license must (or should) already have basic interpreting skills, education, and training, such that the marginal advancement to full licensee should not take unlimited or even several years. Limiting renewals to four at most in the proposed amendment means that a provisional licensee would have an initial provisional license lasting up to a year and then up to four additional renewal years in which to progress from provisional licensee to full licensee. The Board finds that such is ample time, it is just and reasonable, and that the benefit to, and protection of, the deaf and hearing consumers of interpreting services substantially outweighs any burden to provisional licensees affected by this amendment.

Finally, the NCITLB has considered the impact of Covid-19 and the months during which testing was not conducted. However, during those months, most provisional licensees could have been working on their skills at home and/or through online resources and/or otherwise to improve their skills for obtaining full licensure when testing resumed. At present, testing has been generally available for at least several months.
